

ANTIOCH IS HOST AS FIRST COUNTRY FAIR OPENS

POLITICAL GROUPS URGE REGISTRATION BY LAKE CO. VOTERS

October 14 and 28 Designated As Registration Days

October 14 and 28 have been designated as registration days in Lake county, when all citizens who have moved or become of age since the last general election are required to register before they will be permitted to vote at the election on November 4. Both the republican and democratic organizations of the county are striving to induce all who are subject under the law to register on one of the two days.

Those eligible to register and vote have lived in the state one year, in the county 90 days, and in the precinct 30 days. People who have moved from one precinct to another are asked to register.

Large Vote Expected
Intense interest in the candidates and in the referendum issue will bring out a vote of about 38,000, Low A. Hendee, Lake county clerk, said. Lake county voters, under the election laws, are not compelled to register if their names are already on the poll books in the precincts in which they reside.

There are seventy-one precincts in the county, and voters will register at their precinct polling places.

Boat Thieves Again Active Around Lakes

Boat thieves are again active around the lakes of the region, according to reports of victims of thefts recently. The latest theft was reported last week when Charles L. Hansen, reported the loss of his hunting boat which was taken from Columbia Bay, Fox Lake. The boat was a "Green Bay."

Two years ago Mr. Hansen's twin outboard motor was stolen and the boat was left battered against a seawall near his home.

A great number of boats and motors are taken from the lakes each year, the thefts being more numerous in the fall than at other seasons.

Light Lures Thousands For Nightly Toy Golf Games in Chicago Area

Night illumination of toy golf has captured the popular fancy of thousands of people in the metropolitan Chicago area where about 100 lighted courses are now operating, according to figures of utility company serving the area.

Miniature golf, which is now played on a brilliantly electric lighted lot with a putter, was born five years ago on Lookout Mountain near Chattanooga, where Garnett A. Carter built the first abbreviated links.

The extent to which night lighting has made this vest pocket golfing craze popular since last spring is shown by conservative estimates placing the number of courses in the country at 25,000.

Millions of people, who formerly could not participate in the outdoor recreation toy golf offers because of daytime duties, are now seeking this pastime at night.

Truck Load of Eggs Are Smashed Tues. Morning

If these poor patient hens could have seen the final resting place of all their efforts Tuesday morning, they must surely have been moved to bitter tears. A Wisconsin truck, laden with crates of eggs, belovely to have been from Burlington, was headed south on Route 21, when about a half mile from Antioch, it slipped from the concrete, due to fog and greasy pavement, and took these eggs for a brief but exciting ride into the ditch. It was the last ride for most of them. The car was not badly damaged, and was repaired immediately.

Noted Aviator Is Welcomed in Antioch

Water in Carburetor Forces
Eddie Heath to Land
Here

Eddie Heath, of the Heath Aircraft company and the oldest flyer in the Chicago area, paid the Antioch Glider club an unexpected visit Sunday on his return trip to Chicago from Oregon, Wis.

Heath, flying a Heath Parasol airplane at an altitude of about 2000 feet made a steep dive to greet the club members, who were in the act of practicing gliding at the club's field. After nosing the plane up the engine began to miss badly making a landing necessary. The pilot circled the field and came down to a perfect landing.

An examination of the carburetor revealed a small amount of water which must have been stirred up in the dive. After a few minutes visit and adjusting Heath took off for Chicago with a promise to return to visit the club again in the future.

Club members were enthused about the type of airplane he was flying, it being one of the smallest planes on the market and of the same type with which Heath has taken several records.

ANTIOCH MEETS OLD ENEMY FOR BIGGEST GAME OF SEASON

Locals Prepare to Repeat
Former Victories and Revenge Defeats

Kill the Jinx! Have you heard that before? Well, you'll hear it again before Friday, when Warren sends their battlers to the local field to attempt to repeat their victory of last year. For some reason, strange or otherwise, the games with our nearest rivals, Warren and Libertyville, never fail to arouse unusually great enthusiasm and feeling, and the games are always determinedly fought by both teams.

Antioch handed them a defeat in 1928, but in '27, Warren held the high score. Before the year, in '24, '25, and '26, Antioch was the undisputed victor.

Coach Kollon is bringing his boys up here Friday, with a whole community of loyal fans, in the expectation of dimming the established fame of the Antioch high school. If Coach Rood and his team, and Antioch's boosters, have anything to say about the matter, these same expectations will be nil after the game.

Warren is out for the season's championship, and if the "dope" as circulating among the conference schools, has any foundation, they may reach their goal, being rated as one of the strongest schools. They have practically the same line-up as they had last year, and though they have played but one game so far this season, they were easily the victors.

As it happens, this game will coincide with the Antioch-Lake Villa Poultry and Country Fair, thus insuring a large crowd of interested spectators.

Arlington Wins by One Point
Antioch was defeated Saturday after a closely contested game with Arlington Heights by a score of 13-12.

At the end of the first half the score stood 6-6, Art Jenrick having crossed the goal line through a punter after the return of a punt. In the third quarter the locals went into a slump, during which Arlington scored a touchdown. They also made their drop kick. Antioch outplayed them during the other quarters. In the last quarter Bob King caught a long pass and carried the ball past the goal line.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Webb have returned after an enjoyable vacation trip through Michigan and Minnesota.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Hoff and Mr. and Mrs. John Harn of Richmond spent Saturday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Clark.

Nelson Sibley underwent an operation at the Ill. Masonic hospital at Chicago Tuesday, and is recovering nicely.

CONFERENCE CHOICE PLEASES METHODISTS

Rev. Philip T. Bohi
Is Returned to Antioch

Members of the First Methodist church of Antioch were elated Monday over the announcement that Pastor Philip T. Bohi had been returned here by the Rock River Conference which closed with the reading of the appointments of 360 ministers of the conference.

The sessions opened Sept. 30 with a reception to Bishop MacDowell, Friday evening was laymen's day, in the afternoon the two women's missionary societies had their anniversary, and in the evening "International Night" was held.

Among those from Antioch who attended were: Saturday evening—Howard Masine, Evelyn Hennings, Dan Williams and Harold Nelson, who enjoyed the Epworth League rally, Sunday Rev. Bohi was accompanied by S. E. Pollock, Mrs. Ben Burke, Miss Goldie Davis, Miss Mary Stanley and Miss Lottie Jones.

T. Somerville Resumes Management of Bakery and Restaurant Here

Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Somerville resumed active management of their bakery and restaurant here Tuesday morning when the place was reopened for business after the Somervilles had been in retirement for the last three years, during which time the business was operated in succession by Robert Worsley of Waukegan, and later by Micks Depner of Kenosha.

Following financial difficulties Depner was forced to quit a few weeks ago, and Mr. Somerville, owner of the building, decided to take over the management of the business. Having been engaged in business here for more than 20 years, Mr. Somerville feels in position to expand his business. He plans to give particular attention to the bakery department.

Somerville is one of the pioneer business men in an Antioch newspaper of 1907 his name was one of the few appearing which is still prominent among the business men of the town.

MODEL FLYERS FORM CLUB HERE

A model flyers club, which is affiliated with the International Model Flyers organization, has been formed in Antioch with Robert Morley acting as temporary chairman until the election of permanent officers at a meeting to be held at the high school Monday night.

The object of the organization which has been in existence for many years, is to teach the principles of aeronautics through the building and flying of model airplanes. Through elimination contests candidates are selected by the various clubs to take part in the state and national meets.

There is no age limit or other qualifications required for membership. Members from four to 64 years of age belong to the organization.

"It's lots of fun, and Antioch ought to have a large membership," Mr. Morley said, urging everyone to join and attend the meetings held at the high school every Monday night.

Monday Legal Holiday; Both Banks to Close

"In fourteen hundred and ninety-two, Columbus sailed the Ocean Blue," So said some poet.

Columbus Day is a legal holiday and the Antioch banks, and the other Lake county banks will close their doors in appreciation of the fact that we are not all packed in Europe or Asia like the exhibits at the Fair with this America of ours still unexplored by white man.

Charles Sibley, Mrs. Fred Hawkins and Mrs. S. Winchell were guests of Mrs. H. Boulden, Wilmet, Tuesday.

Mrs. Jans Sorenson Passes
Away at Daughter's
Home Monday

Mrs. Jans Sorenson, well-known in this entire vicinity and particularly in Lake Villa, passed away at the home of her daughter, Mrs. L. J. Tweed, at Menaville, in Lake Villa township, Monday evening about 8:00 o'clock, after a lingering illness of over a year. She suffered a paralytic stroke a few weeks ago, and has been rapidly declining since that time.

Mrs. Sorenson, nee Charity Olson, daughter of Olaf Olson, was born Nov. 25, 1837, at Walmo, Sweden. She received her education in Sweden, and was married in that country on December 28, 1874, to Jans Sorenson.

Will Risk World's Crown in Representing the Middle West

Ray Pregenzer, Jr., champion speed boat pilot, and the only man in the world who ever attained a speed of more than fifty miles an hour at the wheel of an outboard motor craft, will risk his international crown when he participates in the national championship outboard motor boat races, to be held Sunday and Monday, Oct. 12, and 13th on the Connecticut river off Middletown. Pregenzer is not only a contender for personal honors, but is representing the middle west.

The chief referee will be A. T. Griffith, secretary of the Mississippi Valley Power Boat Association. Already more than 200 pilots from every section of the country have been registered for the meet. Several other Illinois entrants are expected to come through with honors.

Mr. and Mrs. Scott Haley of Buda, Ill., are visiting Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Sloan on their farm on Route 59.

Bud White of Chicago spent the week-end at the home of Elsie Dunford.

Fred Griffin Is Hurt in Tractor Accident at Golf Grounds

Fred Griffin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Griffin, of Antioch, was seriously hurt Saturday at the Cedar Crest Golf Course. There were no witnesses to the accident, but it is believed that the tractor, which he was driving, caught in a snag of sod, and young Griffin's leg was caught and badly cut. He was brought home in an unconscious condition, but is now slowly recovering.

He is a student at the Antioch high school.

TORSO MURDERER BELIEVED INDICTED

The alleged slayer of the unidentified woman found in the ashes of a burned cottage at Deep Lake March 9, one Harry Higgins, Chicago and St. Paul gangster, and ex-convict, was believed to have been indicted by the grand jury Monday, the first day of the October session.

Circuit Judge Edward Shurtleff, having left Monday for the appellate bench, will return Saturday so that the jury may complete the work and make a report.

A murder warrant was issued for Higgins by State's Attorney A. V. Smith over a month ago, but he has not been located at the present time. Enough evidence has been compiled to prove that the woman was a former sweetheart of Higgins, who disposed of her, when she became too familiarly acquainted with his activities. If he can be located, after having been indicted, it is possible, authorities believe, that he may confess.

Gripton, Successful Farmers Institute President, Re-elected

Frank Gripton, Garneo poultry farmer, who has proven himself a very capable president of the Lake County Farmers' Institute, was honored by re-election at the last meeting of the Farmers' Institute at the Elia township high school Friday.

Other officers appointed at the same meeting were: F. H. Dorsey, Lake Zurich, secretary; D. H. Minto, Antioch, treasurer, and J. E. Barrett, Prairie View, who was re-elected district director.

The Institute this year was planned in a very educational and constructive manner, speeches being given which stressed the education of the farm youth, and the importance of modern domestic science knowledge.

Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Ray were enjoying their vacation in California this week, according to a card to friends here addressed at Burbank. They have been touring for the last four weeks. Orin Palmer is in charge of the Sinclair station during the absence of Mr. Ray.

NUMEROUS ENTRIES INDICATE SUCCESS; BIG POULTRY SHOW

School Grounds Tented
City of Extra Fine
Exhibits

DEPARTMENT HEADS ENTHUSED

Lowering skies and threats of rain that continued until early afternoon today failed to dampen the enthusiasm at the Antioch Township high school where entries continued to pour in by hundreds for Antioch's First Country Fair and the 7th Annual Poultry Show.

Both building and grounds were the scenes of busy activity early today when the finishing touches and final preparations for the big show were being completed. A veritable tented city seemed to spring up almost overnight. Hustle and tense activity was noted everywhere—the big Ferris wheel seemed to leap skyward, the merry-go-round was placed and the plaintive notes of the organ, or what have you, denoted that all was in readiness in that quarter—the two big tents of state exhibits were given the final touches today, and every department superintendent was busily engaged in receiving and tagging the entries in the several departments.

At five o'clock today Secretary C. L. Kull reported that over 200 exhibitors had made more than 1,300 entries.

Great Exhibit for Women
The exhibits of interest to women are placed in separate booths in the auditorium in the old section of the building. There are three departments, the Domestic Art, the Pantry Stores, and the Fine Arts.

Mrs. C. Crowley, head of the Domestic Art Department, which includes fancy work and sewing of every design, says that she is particularly enthused over the unusually fine display of wall hangings, yarn pictures, pillows and stools, and the rag rugs. They are attractively arranged, and the exhibits would seem to equal any which the women of Europe or Asia might offer.

Pantry Stores Unusual
Mrs. Hughes, head of the Pantry Stores, expects to have many more entries come in this afternoon in the pantry line. As there is no danger of the canned goods not being fresh, a large number of those were brought (Continued on page eight)

THE COUNTRY FAIR

Antioch's big country fair and poultry show begins today. The cities may have their marathon dances, their world series and other big time stuff, but the country has its fairs.

Without passing judgment as to which may be the better form of attraction, there is no denying that the fairs, county, district or state, offer both the city man and the farmer a medium for recreation, pleasure and education that performs a real service. For the fair is not all red lemonade, hot dogs and "hoss races."

Where is the farm woman who does not feel a justifiable thrill of pride when the ribbon is placed upon her needlework, or the products of her culinary skill? Where is the farmer who does not feel a glow of satisfaction when his livestock entry is judged a winner? And rightly so!

This year, with entries coming in as never before, Antioch's most expansive effort that is being engineered by C. L. Kutil and his capable department heads, in combining the seventh annual poultry exhibition with the first country fair, seems destined to be a success.

Fair time is the time for renewing old friendships and for making new ones, for talking politics, crops and business. But it is also time for checking up on developments that may mean much to you in farm and business operations next year.

Don't fail to visit the fair, for your relaxation, education and entertainment.

AUTOMOBILE CLUB TO SEEK PASSAGE OF DRIVER'S LICENSE BILL

The licensing of all automobile drivers, as one of the most effective means of reducing automobile accidents, is one of the solutions to be urged by the Automobile Club of Illinois before the Illinois State Legislature convening this fall.

A recent survey, made by the American Motorists Association, the national motoring body, shows that at the present time only 12 states, and the District of Columbia, require a mandatory examination as to physical fitness and skill to drive an automobile. In eight other states the law requires a driver's license, but does not make the examination compulsory.

"Compulsory examination as to physical fitness and skill to drive an automobile, should be the first requisite in the securing of an operator's permit," declares St. Mayer, President of the Automobile Club of Illinois and vice-president of the A. M. A. "An analysis of the state laws show that this is required in the following 12 states: Arizona, California, Connecticut, Delaware, Maryland, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Vermont and the District of Columbia. Effective October 1, South Carolina will have a similar law.

"The more granting of a permit, without compulsory examination as to fitness or skill, offers no solution towards barring the unskilled driver from the highway. Under existing laws, in the vast majority of the states, almost anyone may operate an automobile, despite court decisions in some states to the effect that an automobile is a dangerous instrument.

The Club is determined to carry this fight through at Springfield, and has already enlisted the aid of many of the civic organizations throughout the state." The streets or highways of Illinois will remain an unsafe thoroughfare for motorists and pedestrians just so long as the legislatures insist upon shelving this issue.

"I Take Care of My Baby"

"WHY LET A NURSE HAVE ALL THE FUN?"

Old
Eagle
Eye
Says-

Going to the Fair today? Maybe tonight?

It's Antioch's first regular country fair and it's a hummer. But Antioch and Lake Villa are veterans in the poultry show business—it's the seventh annual exhibition of the feathered tribe. The poultry show alone is well worth coming to see—always one of the largest and finest in the state, but this year extra good.

A subscriber in Mt. Horeb, Wis., writes to inquire why Antioch never has a "home-coming" as some other towns do. The answer has not been found, but say, wouldn't the annual fair here be a swell occasion to put on a "home-coming"?

A lot of people who used to live around here still think of Antioch. And many of them are scattered to the four corners of the globe. Scores of them keep track of the old burg through the columns of the Antioch News. Occasionally they send in comments on some current event.

"We had the best results from our advertisement in the Antioch News," remarked the head of a Waukegan firm today. The ad he referred to had been placed in practically all Lake county newspapers, dailies and weeklies.

Advertisers who want results should heed the facts rather than listen to extravagant claims made by those who would interest the merchant in other forms of advertising and in other mediums of uncertain worth which do not reach the real buyers of the field covered so thoroughly by the Antioch News.

If advertising in the News will send buyers to Waukegan 20 miles away, then why will not advertising in the News bring buyers to Antioch? If you have a real message for buyers, it will.

Eagle Eye claims that advertising does pay—if the advertiser has faith in his product. If his proposition is right, his goods reasonably priced and his business message properly presented through the right medium.

There's no doubt about the medium in this locality—it's none other than the Antioch News, regardless of what big timers tell you about complete coverage.

Exclamations of surprise were heard last night at the re-opening of Fred B. Swanson's Antioch Theatre. Newly decorated, with new and beautiful lighting effects, new acoustically treated decorated felt on walls, and with fine upholstered seats for the comfort of patrons, the Antioch Theatre is indeed a place transformed. All in a town the size of Antioch! Such enterprise is deserving of success.

CONQUERING YOURSELF

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

Carter was telling a group of young people something of the story of his life. It was what the world would call a very successful man. He was prominent as a banker; he was at the head of many organizations and boards of influence; and in spite of the fact that he was looked upon as a political power, his integrity and his character had never been questioned. I had singled him out when he came into the room, for he was a person of distinguished appearance—tall, straight, square-shouldered, and perfectly poised.

"My father taught me many lessons," he said, when he began talking, "and one of these which left a lasting impression on me was a sentence which he wrote in my copy book and which I was to produce in an effort equal my father's careful penmanship. 'Whip George Carter,' it said. I am not sure that I fully understood its meaning at the time, but I understand better now. It is the problem of self-control. If one is to get anywhere in the world he must subdue himself—his body, his mind, his emotions."

I had watched a baseball game that afternoon. There was a long drive by the batter out to right field beyond the reach of the outfielder, it seemed at first, but he started for it.

"He won't get it," we all said in chorus, but we were mistaken. He had the trained eye, and the swift feet, and just as we thought that he had no chance, he reached out with one hand and snatched the ball from the air. He had learned perfect control of his body.

It was only a little later that the umpire made a decision which the on-lookers questioned. The ball had called the runner out, when it seemed quite evident that he was safe. The coach, a husky middle-aged man, jumped to his feet, excited, abusive, shouting words which may not be printed. But the umpire was probably right, for he was in a better position to see than were the rest of us, and besides it was his business to make the decision. The coach was a man who had not learned to whip George Carter—his emotions were still unsubdued.

Grissold is young and talented, but the habit of drink has got possession of him. He does not always drink to excess, but every so often he comes home drunk. He knows it is a bad habit, and in his snarling moments he knows that for him some day it will spell ruin.

"It is too much for me," he admits, "I can't manage myself. I suppose I shall always drink."

Wilson can't get down to work. He has a good mind, but it is stubborn, lazy, given over to moods, and he has never got it under control. He struggles with it at times, but it has never really been whipped.

It is a great fight, this, which we have daily with our minds, our bodies and our passionate emotions. Few of us have ourselves properly whipped.

HintsADULT PERSONALITY
NEARLY DETERMINED
AT AGE OF 6 YEARSConsidered an Alibi by Some, Nevertheless It's a Cold Fact

By MRS. RUBY RICHEY

Alibis are handy things to grab a hold of to excuse ourselves, aren't they? Well, here the modern psychologists have provided us with another—and it's a good one, too. They say that we may blame our environment during the first six years of our life for our faults now.

But—here's the pill. We, ourselves are now responsible for the molding of other little lives.

Although for many years the importance of proper physical care during the tender years has been recognized and information and literature on the subject have been available, it is only recently that we receive any light on the mental development of the pre-school child.

Authorities on child psychology, such as Dr. Watson, Baldwin, Goetzell, and others, seem agreed that the basis for traits which make up the personality of an individual is laid during the first two years of a child's life, and tendencies to worries, fears, temper tantrums, and silliness seem clearly traceable to treatment received during the first six years of life. This pre-school age is an experimentation period and the training which the parent gives deserves very special attention. If the child is to develop into a desirable, agreeable and happy citizen. Instilling these desirable traits into a child cannot be postponed until the child is several years old; because from the day of birth, the child starts forming habits and developing likes and dislikes, and from this time must be taught obedience. More will be said about the "habit of obedience" later.

This pre-school child has a curiosity, which will become outstanding at about the age of two years. This curiosity needs encouragement and guidance by answers and questions that satisfy and interest the wide-awake child. Therefore you mothers see the necessity of being intelligently informed on many subjects. A little child is the greatest skeptic, and therefore the greatest learner of the times.

(More on this subject will be given on October 16th)

Cure 'Cooking Complex'
With These Recipes!

If you're bored to tears with the "three squares" a day, if the family has elevated its snicky nose at some of your pet concoctions, or if the whole meal question has given you a complex against cooking—what you need is variety! Something with that "different" touch, something so interesting to make it will give you a chance to rival Edison with your inventive skill in your own kitchen-laboratory.

A successful painter constantly creates new pictures, a singer learns new songs, and the poet seeks new subjects—who can call cooking a lesser art? The kitchen-wizard who would keep her own talent fresh and bright as a new cake-pan will create new dishes, too, at least once a week.

Here are some tested recipes which will help give you a head start of that rut:

Macaroons Francaise

2 egg whites
¼ teaspoon salt
¾ cup granulated sugar
¼ teaspoon of vanilla
¼ lb. package or can of cocoanut (1-3 cups)

Beat the egg whites stiff but not dry. Add the salt. Beat in the sugar one-fourth cup at a time. Add the vanilla and fold in the cocoanut. Drop rounded teaspoonsful of the mixture one inch apart on a baking sheet or inverted pan which has been well greased with unsalted fat or cooking oil. Bake in a slow oven (275 degrees F.) for 25 minutes. For

Chic Fall Costume

It is very evident that these beauty specialists know their "figgers", when they say that the slender waistline and trim ankles are just about essential to the smart young woman of today. And have you noticed? Rick-rack is coming back. (That wasn't meant to be poetical—merely a statement of interest to women who feared that the elongated hemline was going to make serious havoc with their pin-money. And if the prices of clothes hadn't descended along about that time, there would have been some justification of their fears. Something more to chase away pessimism—cotton is coming into its own!)

This nifty costume fit for fall wear. The frock, of bright blue covert cloth is trimmed, as was said, with rick-rack in white pique. An agnes tam of blue is bound with a hand and bow of white grosgrain ribbon.

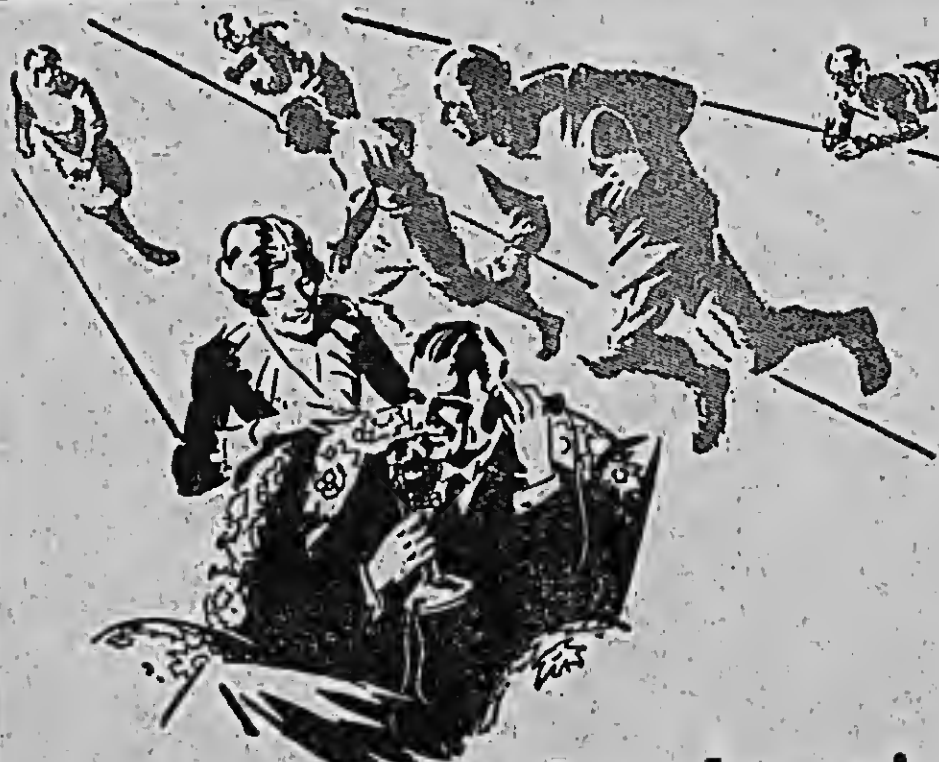

Chocolate Macaroons, melt one square chocolate and add to recipe. 30 macaroons.

Date-Ice Box Cake

2 cups (1 package) dates (cut)
¼ cup milk
1-8 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ pint cream (whipped)
½ lb. graham crackers (rolled)
½ cup nut meal (cut)
2 cups (¼ lb.) marshmallows (cut)

Crush the graham crackers with a rolling pin. Cut the dates and marshmallows into small pieces with wet scissors. To the cut dates, add the milk, salt and vanilla. Add nuts and marshmallows. Mix well. Add graham crackers. Add whipped cream last. Form in a cylinder. Roll the sides in graham cracker dust. Wrap in waxed paper. Let stand 24 hours. Serve cut in slices with whipped cream or ice cream on top. 12 servings.

If you have never tried Stuffed Gingerbread, you've missed something!

Dad gets the dope!

"We beat them 14 to 7, Dad! In the last quarter Dick Brady ran sixty-seven yards for the winning score... you should have seen him travel!"

Dad telephones his boy at school and "gets the dope" on all the games. Father and son talk over studies, too, and—need it be said—finances! Mother says "hello", too, and these little telephone visits keep her happy while her boy is away in a distant college town.

Sons and daughters away at school can telephone home and have the charges "reversed". Make a habit of "keeping in touch" by telephone all through the school year. Long Distance is Quick... Clear... Inexpensive!

Preserves for Early Autumn

By Mildred A. Hill

Late fruits and vegetables lend themselves to many delicious jams and preserves. Here are two recipes which call for inexpensive vegetables. Incidentally, sugar is also selling at a price about as low as it has in a generation; so you have an unusual opportunity to put up liberal quantities of these preserves at little cost.

Pumpkin Preserves

Remove the rind and seeds from a small pumpkin and cut the flesh in inch cubes. Cook in a small amount of water until tender. Drain and weigh. For each pound of pumpkin allow 1 pound of sugar, 2 lemons, and 2 ounces of ginger root. Slice the lemons and soak with the ginger over night in cold water. Next morning cook in the same water until the lemon rind is tender. Add the sugar and the pumpkin, and simmer until the pumpkin is transparent. Drain and pack in jars. Cook syrup until it is thick and pour over the fruit in jars. Seal tightly.

Tomato Preserves

Weigh small, half-ripe tomatoes and allow ¾ pound sugar and 1 lemon to each pound of tomatoes. Slice the lemons thin and cook in water to cover until the skin is tender. Strain off the water, and use with as much more water as is needed to make ¾ cup liquid to each pound of tomatoes. Add the tomatoes and slices of lemons, and cook until the tomatoes are transparent. Skim fruit into jars; boil the syrup until thick and pour over fruit.

TOPPY'S TRAVELS

Synopsis: Toppo leaves his home to follow his canary, Linny, who flies away. After an adventure with Mr. Frog, and with the Dewdrops, he is sent to see the Queen. His robe is stolen by the Pillows, enemies of the Queen. He is locked in a prison with the Queen and her maidens. The Queen makes him a General. He becomes so hungry that he slides down a moonbeam to the ground. Continue—

After saying goodbye to the Queen, Toppo felt very lonely—and oh, so hungry. He held the sword more firmly in his small hand.

He had gone but a little way, when he heard a croaking voice say, "Well, well, look who's here!" And there stood Mr. Frog. Toppo was so happy that he ran toward him, exclaiming, "Oh, Mr. Frog! How did you get here?"

Mr. Frog, as usual, grumbled away down in his throat. "Oh, that pest of a dewdrop that calls himself Toy came and brought me here. Said that you were a prisoner of some idiotic Pillows, but you don't look much like a prisoner to me. I'm perfectly sure that I don't know what that dewdrop thought I could do, but I came."

Loyal little Toy! To tell the truth, Toppo, in his exciting adventures had nearly forgotten him.

"You fed me once," Toppo said to Mr. Frog, "and I'm so hungry. Do you know where I could find something to eat?"

"Yes," Mr. Frog went on in his grumbling way, "I fed you once, but you only fed me one quarter. However—"

"He's remembering the twenty-five flies," thought Toppo. "Anyway he seems to have regained his memory."

"As I was saying before you interrupted me," Mr. Frog began, "How over—"

"But I didn't interrupt you," Toppo said, bewildered.

"What of it?" Mr. Frog glared.

"Unreality" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, October 5.

The Golden Text was, "Turn us again, O God of hosts, and cause thy face to shine; and we shall be saved" (Psalms 80:7).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "Finally, brethren, whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report; if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these things" (Philippians 4:8).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Hold thought steadfastly to the enduring, the good, and the true, and you will bring these into your experience proportionably to their occupancy of your thoughts" (p. 201).

LAKE COUNTY Farm Bureau NEWS NOTES

A great deal of interest has been expressed in Lake county concerning a Home Bureau.

In order that the women of Lake county may know more about the work, Mrs. Kathryn Van Aken Burns, State Leader of Home Bureau work in Illinois, has been secured to speak to the ladies and tell them all about the operation, financing, membership, home adviser, etc.

This meeting will be held Friday, October 17, at 1:30 p. m. at the Community hall at Grayslake.

A committee of Mrs. Earl Kane, Mrs. L. V. Lusk, Mrs. E. E. Elsbury, Mrs. E. W. King and Mrs. John Siralan, has been appointed by the executive committee of the Farm Bureau to take charge of arrangements for this meeting.

All women, both rural and town, are urged to attend this meeting and hear Mrs. Burns.

A Home Bureau in Lake county will give the women direct contact, through a Home Advisor, with trained workers in home economics, through the Extension Service of the University of Illinois.

A Home Bureau would take charge of Girls' 4-H club work and would be able to give more advantages to the girls. In McHenry county, last year, the 4-H club girls had a week's camp.

Specialists from the University of Illinois bring special information to the counties.

Hear Mrs. Burns, Friday, Oct. 17, tell all about the Home Bureau.

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER I—Renewing a childish attachment, Ernestine Brickland, of a wealthy Chicago family, is tremendously attracted by Will Todd, youthful newspaper artist, son of a not particularly well-to-do carpenter. Her sister Lillian, more of the conventional type, and aware of the attitude their father would take toward his daughter's marriage to an impecunious youth, urges Ernestine to end the affair, but the latter, capable of a passionate attachment, and realizing that in Will Todd she has found her affinity, refuses.

CHAPTER II—The love-making progresses swiftly, and finally, largely because of Ernestine's urging, Brickland is infuriated but helpless. Ernestine, being of age, and after a stormy scene the girl, with her husband, leaves her parents' home. Loring Hamilton, wealthy young lawyer, long Lillian's suitor, wins her consent to be his wife.

CHAPTER III

Strange Country

It seemed a natural thing to Ernestine, however it seemed to the others, to wake on her marriage morning, in the little back bedroom of the tiny house where the Todds had lived all their married life. She was instantly wide awake and oriented. Perhaps it was the close tangle of Will's arms about her that made everything normal. Perhaps the delicious consciousness of new happiness had never entirely been lost in sleep. It did not matter at all about the family now.

Thinking of everything, Ernestine felt in her heart something new about Will. Added to her romantic love for him was something really more wonderful; a sound thing—respect. He had behaved admirably.

She was filled with a transport of tenderness, a strong conviction of having done well. Now, at last, life had begun for her. The chrysalis of girlhood was broken, and she was emerged into womanhood. She had become real. Always now, Will would be here beside her at the beginning of every day. Gravely she considered this, and sent up a wordless prayer that she might be a good wife.

Some one was moving about in the kitchen, and she heard the rattle of cans in the kitchen grate. How close and small the house was. Each sound came through the thin walls distinctly. Ernestine realized that she would have to close the window, and she essayed to rise. But at the first movement Will's arms tightened about her, though he did not waken. Ernestine extricated herself and got up with a swift strong movement.

"You have to work today, Will," she said in such a wifely tone that he laughed and looked up at her adoringly.

"I suppose now I've got somebody even worse than my mother about making me get up," he said, and then added, "Hey, wait, I'll get you some warm water." For Ernestine was washing her face in the basin that stood on a small washstand near the door.

But the water out of the pitcher, which had stood all night with the cold wind blowing through the open window upon it, was cold and invigorating.

Will shaved in the kitchen, and Ernestine could hear his voice, in an affectionate murmur, talking to some one. Before the small, wavy mirror, she applied her make-up, looking at herself sharply. She arranged her sleek soft hair, proud of its thickness and texture. What was there in her face? Was she different this morning? She must not be different. She powdered again, and rubbed some of the scarlet off her lips, which were as red as cherries under the lip salve.

She made the bed neatly and set the room in order, packed up her belongings. The smell of coffee and the sound of the percolator made her feel faint. She had eaten nothing the evening before.

In the kitchen, Will's face turned on her, as bright as a triangular mirror with the sun on it. His mother was sitting by the kitchen table, with a warm shawl over her heavy dress. She could be up at times, and this morning she had made the effort. Ernestine went to Will's mother, and kissed her.

"I hope you didn't get up on our account, mother," she said gently, "but I'm glad you are better."

The woman looked up at Ernestine, her faded eyes, under the drooping brows, regarding this strange bird that had slipped so easily into her nest. How old she looked, thought Ernestine. She was a generation beyond mamma, for she was old with a gentle humility and meekness that Ernestine had never met before. There was not in her even the stubbornness that sometimes the meek can use so effectively.

Will's father, Ernestine could understand. A carpenter, with a gift for woodcutting, he was a skilled and able workman and had a great pride in his trade. He was a tall, thin, stooped man, with a clean-shaven, heavily furrowed face and brightly saturated black eyes, which regarded Ernestine with a kind of grim humor. He made her realize without saying so, that he disapproved of their marriage as much as her people did, but that he was not the man to cry over spilled milk. They could count on his kindness.

At breakfast in the bright kitchen, Ernestine and Will made plans.

"You are welcome to stay here as long as you like," said Peter Todd, but the two shook their heads. They had already decided to be independent at once.

"We might just as well go today, and find a place to board until we can get an apartment," said Ernestine, looking very young and earnest. "I'll get my trunk from mamma's, as soon as we have found a residence. It's awfully good of you to want us here, but the house is small, and mother is really not well enough to have us."

Mrs. Todd said nothing, and Ernestine felt that she had never seen so dispirited a creature.

"If we get near town, mom," Will said, "we can save money on carfare. I know a place on Erie street one of the fellows told me about, where you can get a room and two meals, at a reasonable price, and it's in walking distance of the office. Anyhow, I think we ought to live alone."

"That's right," said Will's father. "It's the only way for young married people. If you need any money when you go to fixing up a flat I can lend you a little. I always have a few hundred dollars tucked away for emergencies," he explained to Ernestine. "I can let Will borrow, without interest, if he needs it. I own a house on Troy street that you could have if it wasn't leased. But the location is not good for you."

"Well, manage," said Will confidently, and Ernestine admired him. They exchanged bright looks, and Mr. Todd said heartily:

"Well, come and visit us sometimes, anyhow."

It was soon time for them to go. Ernestine, in her squirrel coat and scarlet hat, bade her new relatives good-by. She felt that there were tears in the air, realized a little that these people were losing Will more definitely than she would ever be lost to her family. He was their only son, but they said good-by to him with quiet dignity. Ernestine admired their restraint, and was grateful for their good taste. They offered neither advice nor counsel, but allowed the young ones to go forth about their own affairs. The house on Erie street brought to Ernestine her first shock of reality. It was an ancient, smoke-blackened dwelling place, not far from the lake. Across the street from the house a five-story machine shop reverberated with activity. A secret-looking brown-stone house, with drawn blinds, stood on the corner. Ernestine felt that the apartment they spoke of so glibly was not so near. A sense of the irrevocable nature of the step she had taken swept over her. She was now Will's, and, as he had said to her father, his roof was her roof. His home was hers, and this was it. She had definitely abandoned her old way of life and set her feet in a strange country. The future was as remote from the past as though she were following him to a great distance.

Hand in hand they ran up the stone stairs and met a small plump woman, called Mrs. Bennett, with whom Will discussed rooms and prices, while Ernestine stood to one side, burningly conscious of the gold band on her third finger.

Ernestine was too good a sport to bemoan their conspicuous lack of money. Fresh from the rigors of a fine school, it was not hard for her to accustom herself to simplicity. Will discovered that she had a most practical nature. The forces which had driven her into marriage had not all been romantic. In adjusting herself to living on Will's pay, she was able to exercise some of her native ingenuity and shrewdness, and in that capacity she found a certain pleasure. It was fun to put herself on a basis of having no money to spend and then discovering how much she had grown accustomed to spending in the months since she had left school. Her trunk was full of pretty clothes. It was an element she did not at first appreciate.

CHAPTER IV

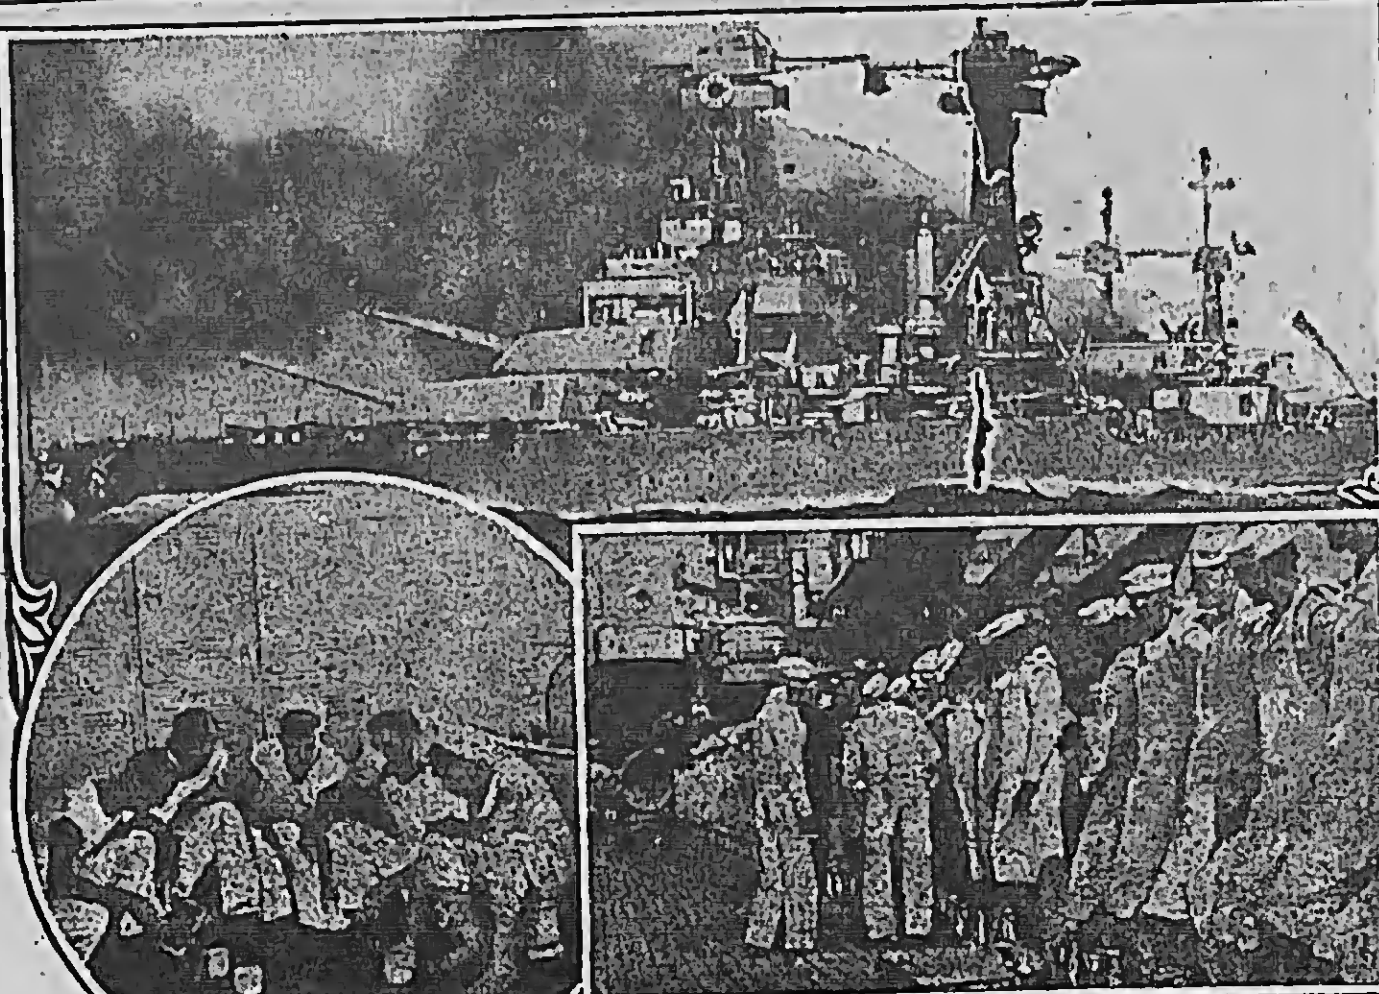

A Party at Pastano's

Mr. Poole was having a party for Ernestine and Will, and, according to prearrangement, Ernestine slipped downstairs ahead of time to show herself to Mrs. Bennett. She could not help but be proud of the evening

"Jamoke" Is The Navy's Standard Beverage; U. S. Sailors Drink a Quart of Coffee a Day

Mess cooks of the U.S.S. Arkansas line up on deck for the daily inspection of coffee pots. (Left) Sailors on board the California enjoying an extra potful of "Jamoke" before turning in for a deck scrubbing detail.

THE United States Navy drinks enough coffee every year to float a battleship. In 1918, when the Navy had considerable work to do in foreign parts, it used 680 tons of "Jamoke," which is John Sallor-man's jargon for the beverage that has taken the place of the old time grog ration. Add to 680 tons of ground coffee the water, sugar and cream that goes with it, and you have a sizeable pond for a full-fledged dreadnaught.

Aboard ship in the Navy "Jamoke" is to be had at all times, and there is no limit to the amount the seamen may drink. Aside from regular meals, it is served to them coming off and going on watch, and, when the weather is boisterous, they are permitted to raid the galley for a mug of steaming brew at any hour of the day or night. And Navy coffee is of the best quality, brewed according to the regulations of the official Navy cookbook. On the average, every American sailor drinks a quart of it a day.

Some years ago certain civilian elements set up a clamor against the serving of coffee to "our poor sailors" because it was a stimulant. The Medical Corps promptly instituted an investigation in all naval hospitals and aboard ships. Exhaustive scientific tests, later confirmed by independent experiments at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, demonstrated conclusively that, far from being injurious, coffee had a distinct dietary value. It was found to be useful, not only because of its stimulating effect on brains, nerves and muscles, but also because it made a real contribution to diet as a "food auxiliary."

Coffee, too, was found to be a peculiar and a very important asset to the Navy in that it helped to prevent seasickness. Seaside sailors, as some authority has said, have never yet won a battle.

There used to be a popular superstition that food aboard a fighting craft consisted almost entirely of beans and hardtack, with occasional bread pudding. Even today, when one realizes that the Navy food ration is only 50 cents per day per man, it is difficult to believe that sailors are well fed. But the Navy feeds them well, with plenty of milk and fresh vegetables and meat and rich desserts. And with "seconds" and "thirds."

Aboard such a ship as the U.S.S. West Virginia there are 1400 men, for whom the Chief Commissary Steward has a daily allowance of $700. His is a job that requires close and careful budgeting, for the Navy insists that he keep within his allowance, yet he must observe the dietary rules laid down by regulations and, at the same time, please John Sallorman, who has to be kept happy if he is to be kept aloft.

Of course, Navy supplies are purchased by contract in huge wholesale lots so that the Steward has at the outset a tremendous advantage over the frugal housewife. And the Steward has gone through the cooks' and bakers' school and has worked himself up from a "galley slide" to his present responsible position. He knows what goes on.

The Navy cookbook specifies clearly that every meal served must include certain "protective foods," such as butter, milk, eggs and vegetables or fruit or both. Fresh fruits are favored for breakfast, especially oranges and grapefruit, and oatmeal is scheduled to appear on the menu at least once a week. Soup for dinner, except in warm weather, and meat and fresh vegetables. Relishes and condiments are recommended; sweet dessert after dinner is the invariable rule. And "Jamoke," in large and fragrant quantities.

"You Are Lovely," He Protested as Though She Had Denied It.

dress mamma had given her for Christmas, and which she had not worn before. The yellow chiffon lay about her slender limbs delicately, subtly. She appreciated the elusive coyness of the dress that had come with the dress and the gold cloth slippers. The string of small real pearls which had come to her from her Grandmother Langley's estate, the pearl ring which daddy had given her to match her necklace, were the last touches of a perfect toilet. Will had appreciated her, this evening, his fine eyes glowing with admiration.

"You are lovely," he protested, as though she had denied it, and she swung herself about in the narrow room and gave him a languishing, mocking look. But she went down the carpeted stairs in a glow, her squirrel coat over her arm.

Mrs. Bennett got up with an admiring exclamation when Ernestine closed the door behind her. The latter advanced to the center of the room and prouetted on her toes. A little, round, weary body, with tired eyes beneath a fringe of gray hair, Mrs. Bennett had long outworn personal egotism and was generous with praise and sympathy.

"Youth is the time to live, darling," she said to Ernestine. "My life is an old story, but you are young and glowing, and things are happening to you. It is better for you to have your hard times now, and grow old rich and strong, than to have the hardships in old age, as I have had them. But tell me, aren't you excited to be having a birthday party given in your honor by a great cartoonist?"

Ernestine laughed. "He only wants to be nice to Will. He thinks it will please Will, and of course it does."

CHANNEL LAKE COUNTRY CLUB NEWS

The many members who were fortunate enough to be on the golf course last Sunday not only enjoyed the beautiful weather which prevailed over the weekend, but they were equally pleased with the general condition of the fairways and greens. Those on number 1 and 2, which have been out of use for the past two or three weeks, owing to changes being made, are now in playable condition and are greatly improved.

The "pro", Joe Palotti, finished his season with the club on the 15th, but the caretaker who has been engaged for the winter months will have the club house open for members as long as the favorable weather lasts. Temporary flags have been placed on the greens, and until cold weather sets in, the members may continue to enjoy their usual game.

Most of the summer cottages have been closed, but among those who are still able to take advantage of any nice days is Mrs. E. J. Gnaedinger, whose home is on Lake Marlo.

On Wednesday of this week Mrs. Gnaedinger entertained eight friends from Oak Park, members of the Sorosis club, all of whom drove up just for the day. Mr. and Mrs. Gnaedinger are taking advantage of these beautiful fall days, and another group of friends are to be their guests on Sunday.

Others who have moved into the city are Mr. and Mrs. Harry Arms, Mr. and Mrs. O. D. Richardson and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Heg.

Charles W. Laffin, who has been spending the past month in New York on business, returned last week, but is leaving on another business trip this week to be gone ten days.

STREAM OF ENTRIES FEATURES OPENING OF ANTIOCH'S FIRST FAIR

In this morning. She says that she has received many inquiries concerning the bakery goods exhibit, and feels sure that this exhibit will far surpass any others held recently in this county.

Many Entries in Art

There is no doubt that there is far more individual work exhibited in the Fine Arts department, than ever before, according to Mrs. Fred Hackett. Antioch, more than many other towns, shows much interest in this branch of culture, and beautiful entries have been entered in each of the five divisions — oil paintings, pastel coloring, water coloring, plaque work, and in handpainted china.

Poultry Display Great

Housed in the big gymnasium is what bids fair to be the greatest exhibition of poultry and pet stock ever assembled in Lake county, according to Bert Edwards, superintendent of this department. Specimens of rare excellence will be found in each class. The greater array of premiums has induced entries never before brought to this part of the state, it was said.

Educational Display in Gym Much interest is being displayed in the Educational department in the gym, where the exhibits of several schools are shown. Prin. W. C. Petty is superintendent.

Also of much interest is the educational exhibit by the state of Illinois that is housed in two large tents. Presiding over this exhibit is Earl V. Wright, circuit manager, who has arranged exhibits showing what the state is doing in the several departments of government, including: meats of government, Trade and Commerce, Agriculture, Mines and Minerals, Fire Prevention, Conservation, Public Welfare, Poultry, Animal Husbandry and Dairy Husbandry.

Equipped with chairs and facilities for the showing of motion pictures, the state exhibits are bound to prove a popular place during the fair. Both Mr. Wright and Mrs. Nellie M. Bruce, of the State Department of Public Welfare, will give talks and explain the work of the state in the various departments.

Thick and Fast, They Came at Last The vocational agricultural room at the high school is being rapidly filled with the farmers' produce, which includes the 4-H club exhibits. Antioch, which is a greater agricultural center than many other towns, is showing much interest in these exhibits, and the entire exhibition of grain and vegetable products will doubtless excel those of previous fairs in this county.

Kenneth Denman, head of the vocational department of agriculture, reports that the efforts of the boys last spring, when they platted out their ground, and sowed the seed, now are bearing results. "Mammoth yellow pumpkins from clay seeds do grow." Some of the boys would be more practical than that of the acorns. The boys are also bringing in their prize live stock to exhibit. There will be lively competition in this division, as the boys have shown them at several other fairs this year, and are justly proud of their prizes.

And More and More and More Emmett King, head of the Agricultural Products for the Farmers, and Charles Paddock, head of the department ment for vegetables and fruit, express much satisfaction with the entries thus far, and it appears that the judges will have a difficult time deciding on the winners, as every entry seems of the best quality.

Speaking of being busy, not the least of those who are having manifold duties to perform are Harold D. Minto, president of the Association, and C. L. Kull, secretary.

Free Acts Amuse

Raymond & Marcus, the team of acrobatic clowns engaged to put on free acts, were doing their stuff in workmanlike manner at four o'clock this afternoon, appearing in a series of difficult yet mirthful stunts in their first performance here. The Merry Joys will give two more free exhibitions tonight.

Band Concert Friday

A band concert by the Allendale Boys' band is scheduled for Friday night at 7:30 o'clock, and arrangements are being made for the appearance of another band to appear in concert here Saturday night. Secretary Kull announced today.

Booths and refreshment stands are being operated by the various high school classes, and the Ladies' Aid society of the Methodist church will serve meals at their tent all three days of the fair.
